News-Bulletin Issues Call For Mass Meeting On Annexation Question

The News-Bulletin is calling a mass meeting of the citizens of Mokena at St. Mary's Hall, Mokena for Saturday night of this week at 7:45 o'clock for the purpose of giving the voters of the village an opportunity to discuss the matter of extending the incorporate limits of the village north so as to take in the McIntosh subdivision consisting of forty acres.

A great deal has been said in favor of the annexation but a number of obstacles have arisen that will need ironing out. In order that the voters may vote on this proposition intelligently and with no doubt as to the best course to pursue, the News-Bulletin has felt it to the interest of all concerned to call this mass meeting to give everyone a chance to discuss the matter pro and con. This will be an open meeting, free for all to discuss their views.

There are legal questions to be answered and in order that they may be answered with authority, the News-Bulletin has been fortunate enough to secure Attorney D. R. Anderson of Joliet to come out to this meeting and to give an address that will help to clear up many perplexing thoughts.

No collection will be taken and admission is free to all as the News-Bulletin is sponsoring this mass meeting as its contribution for the good of the cause and the community as a whole. The Ladies of the village are especially invited to attend as they also have a voice in the matter.

Attorney Anderson is one of the best known and one of the ablest attorneys in Will County.

The annexation election will be held Tuesday, October 11th. The polling place will be the village hall and the polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Let every voter in the Village come out and vote. The future development of Mokena is now on trial.

The benefits to be derived from enlarging the corporate limits of the village has been fully covered in the columns and the whole matter rests with the voters.

Don't forget to vote next Tuesday October 11th, on annexation!

The News-Bulletin is in receipt of the following bouquet from John Monroe of Palos Park: "I am on the way home after a two weeks trip in a Ford Coupe to New York. I've visited lots of print shops along the way and haven't found one that puts out a paper with the courage and originality of yours."

Best Wishes from John Monroe

Orland M. E. Bazaar Oct. 13

The Orland Park M. E. Ladies Guild are making big preparations for the big annual bazaar and supper to be held October 13th. Every one is cordially invited.

Beach's Store Displays Relics

The L. F. Beach Company store of Joliet are celebrating their 59th anniversary and they are displaying some wonderful interesting relics of the days of long ago. Some of the stylish dresses with trail and bustle of the period of 1858 are shown, also a very elaborate evening gown of 1868. Among other relics are a bed spread of 1851 with the year outlined. A child's chair dating back to 1807, a Swedish spinning wheel of 1777, a flax wheel of 1850 an ox yoke of 1858, newspapers of 1820, a book on which Benjamin Franklin worked as a compositor, are among the interesting relics on exhibition. It surely is worth while to look back over the days when this part of the country was young.

Orland Twp. To Get More Concrete Roads

Cook County big paving program will assure a concrete road for almost every country district. From present indications Orland township will have the opportunity of getting another paved highway by way of 159th street in the south part of the township thru to Lockport. Another highway claiming attention and which may be built by the state is 167th street which if built would come thru Alpine. If these roads are paved in addition to Wolf Road Orland and vicinity will have one of the finest network of hard roads in the state.

If Alpine should get a paved highway it is likely that a subdivision boom would follow.

Bids All In On Wolf Road

Tuesday the Cook County Board of Commissioners considered many hard roads for Cook County. The bids on the construction of Wolf Road were acceptable to the board and the awarding of the paving contract will be announced within a few days.

Let Us Have Your Expression

Since Cook County has arranged for the paving of Wolf Road from 143rd street, Orland township up to the Will County line north of Mokena, the next big issue is to get this highway paved thru Mokena south to connect with the Lincoln Highway and then on to route 51, a distance of 5 miles more or less.

In order to get a lineup on the sentiment of the people of Orland and Mokena regarding this matter the News-Bulletin is taking a sort of survey of the matter and we are printing a coupon at the foot of this story and ask that our readers show their wishes in this matter by clipping and signing this coupon and bring or send same to the office of the News-Bulletin.

COUPON

Do you want Wolf Road paved from the Will and Cook County Line to connect with the Lincoln Highway and route 51, a distance of five and one-half miles more or less, said paving to be paid for out of the gas tax fund of the state?

New Tinley Police Chief Youngest In the State

Motorcycle Policeman Smith of Harvey who has been employed as speed cop at Tinley Park during the summer, has been appointed chief of Police of Tinley Park, the appointment to go into effect Nov. 1st. Chief Smith claims the honor of being the youngest police chief in the state of Illinois, being only 27 years old. Chief Smith has done very good work in curbing the automobile speeding fever. Before he came on the job the concrete road thru Tinley was used as a regular speedway.

Fred Schmiedeknecht who has been serving Tinley Park as police officer for many years, will be retained on the village pay roll to take care of the pumping station and look after the electric light clock.

Harvey Bidders Get Tinley Park Drainage Job

An important drainage job was let at the Bremen State Bank at Tinley Park Wednesday afternoon when a job was let for tiling over two miles in drainage district No. 3 south of Tinley Park. The tiling job is to cross 183rd street. The estimate cost of the job was set at $13,500 but the contract was let to Harry and Libers of Harvey for $9,600. The job will require 30 carloads of tile which will run from 28 inch to 12 inch tile.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Frankfort represented the drainage district. The highest bid was for $20,000.

Tinley Mayor On Duck Hunt

Mayor Wm. Funk of Tinley Park and George Lorenz have gone on a duck hunting trip to Canton, Ill. If conditions are right they expect to bag their limit.

Tire Stole in Broad Daylight

Howard Beagley of Mokena had an experience with a broad daylight tire thief Wednesday morning. Mr. Beagley drives to and from his employment in Chicago and on the morning in question he parked his car in the driveway on the east side of his home about 5:30 o'clock while he went in the house to eat breakfast. Shortly afterward when he came out he was surprised to find that the spare tire and tube had been stolen from his car. Later on he found some of the lugs from the spare tire lying in the street in the west end of town.

Briggs & Turivas Lumber Bargains

Briggs and Turivas of Blue Island are offering the people of this locality an opportunity of buying cheap kindling wood and second hand lumber right now. Read their big adv. on page four for further particulars.

Mokena Property Owners Plan to Improve Streets

A number of property owners on the south side of Mokena who have lived on mud streets for many years are getting tired of traveling in a mud hole all the year thru, and as the village is not in a position to build any streets, the property owners in question have started petitions to raise enough money to buy crushed stone and have it hauled and spread. The streets to be improved by the property owners residing thereon are Mokena street, from the point where it connects with Cross street back of the Chas. Knapp place and Cross street from this point thru to Wolf Road.

During the summer the residents on Neithammer avenue started the ball rolling for street improvements when the property owners got up a fund and had this street dressed with crushed stone and screenings. This improvement did not cost quite $500. The matter of streets is a big problem for the village dads as it costs considerable to do the work and the treasury is not able to stand much of a strain.

Heavy Deposits Mark Opening of New Bank

Monday was a big day for New Lenox when the first bank the village has ever had, was formally opened. The New Lenox State Bank opened with Ceward C. Batson in charge as cashier. There were quite a number of out of town visitors, especially from Joliet. The deposits were heavy and many Joliet banks are charging 50 cents per month for handling accounts under $100. The New Lenox bank is a big convenience to the people of New Lenox and nearby community for heretofore all banking business had to be done with neighboring banks.

The lobby of the bank was filled with a number of baskets of floral offerings sent by friends and business associates of the bank.

New Lenox Pastor Ordained

Rev. Morrison Galloway of the New Lenox M. E. church will be ordained this coming Sunday at First church Oak Park. The ordination service will be held at three o'clock in the afternoon. The resident bishop, Edwin H. Hughes will have charge of the services.

Tinley Paving Case Up Again

The now famous Tinley Park concrete street fight is still claiming the attention of the courts and lawyers. The contesting sides have been waging a see saw battle for almost a year in the courts. At one time a compromise offer was made for building a 20 foot street instead of the 25 foot roadway and curbing as originally planned, but no agreement could be reached on this score so the contesting parties will appear in court again in Chicago next Tuesday. Attorney A. H. Krusemark will represent the opposing property owners. By the time both sides get thru with their legal difficulties they will have spent enough money for court costs and attorneys fees that would have built the street in question twice over.

Tinley Defeats Mokena 24 to 12

Tinley Park defeated Mokena 24 to 12 Sunday in the first football game of the season. The outstanding feature of the game was a 40 yard lateral pass, Mohr to Schoen to Aulwurm who scored a touchdown on this play, late in the third quarter. A large crowd attended the opening game.

Sunday the local team will clash with the strong Avondale eleven, from McKinley Park, Chicago. The game will be played on the home field and will start promptly at 2 P. M. The probable lineup will be: L. E. - Aulwurm; L. T. - W. Funk; L. G. - M. Bettenhausen; C. - Winterfeldt; R. E. - Monson; R. T. - Valeta; R. G. - Smith; R. H. - Schoen; L. H. - Brookman; Q. Mokena Board Members are For Annexation

An election has been called for the purpose of extending the incorporate limits of Mokena to the north to include the Arthur T. McIntosh and Company subdivision.

It is very essential that the voters of the village go to the polls to give a representative expression of their wishes in the matter.

If Mokena is to take her rightful place in the development she is entitled to expect, it is the opinion of the undersigned, that the electors should vote "YES" on the proposition.

We are heartily for the annexation and solicit all to get out on election day, October 11th and vote in a favorable manner.

Finley Revival Well Attended

In spite of the unfavorable weather conditions the revival now in progress at the Community Hall continues to draw good crowds. The meeting is being conducted by Evangelists.

Jones, an interesting and eloquent speaker and Henry Hick a former Tinley Park boy, who was born and reared in this community and whose earnest appeal is creating a most favorable impression.

The song service is conducted by Mr. Childs and is proving a great aid toward the success of the meeting.

This starts their second week unusual crowds will undoubtedly fill the hall during the Saturday night Sunday afternoon three o'clock services and the Sunday night service at 7:45.

"A home . . . a home!" repeated the other, moody eyes on the pipe which he rubbed in his broad palm. "It doesn't mean anything to me, John."

"Yes, I know," and Skene looked pityingly at his chief. Then voices on deck straightened them in their chairs. A sailor thrust his head through the door of the cabin.

"There's an Injun, here with some news."

"Send him down!"

The Cree interpreter entered the cabin, followed by a hunter whose face was alive with excitement, as he chattered to the Cree.

"What's on his mind, Michel?" demanded McDonald.

Shutting off with upraised hand the stream of Cree from the mouth of the Indian, the interpreter replied: "Joe Mokoman es dead!"

"What?" McDonald rasped. "Dead? How d'you mean? Killed?"

"Found dead on de Canoe Riviere, wid hees 'troad ripped out."

"Well, I'll be d—! Who found him? This bird?"

"No, he see some Cree crossin' ice at de Beeg point—dey tell me."

With a quick movement, McDonald reached and drew the interpreter to him. "You say some of the Indians are crossing to the mainland?"

For a space the harsh phonetics of the Cree tongue filled the cabin.

"At Beeg point, yesterday, he see many dog-team from de nord' cross de ice. A Canoe Riviere hunter say he fin' Mokoman dead in snow by riviere shore."

"But where's old Souci? Didn't he make his medicine on the Canoe?"

"Yes, he say Souci mak' beeg medicine two sleep back—all de hunter een nord of islan' come."

"Good! Souci is bringing them down the coast."

But as the interpreter continued to interrogate the Indian his eyes widened in surprise, which swiftly gave way to consternation. Turning excitedly, he cried: "Souci tell dem Cree dat de devil es een de ship here! He scare dem crazee—tak' dem all ova'r de ice to Elkwan!"

McDonald and Skene were on their feet. "What?" roared the free-trader. "He's taken them — to Elkwan? Stunned, the white men sought each other's faces.

"Souci, he come here to fool us," went on Michel. "He work all tam' for de Hudson's Bay."

"Whipsawed!" And McDonald's bulk slid limply into his chair.

"The old beggar! He fed it to us like a lot of schoolboys!" sputtered Skene, wagging his grizzled head. "He sure put it over in style."

"Played like a pair of fish!" McDonald suddenly straightened. "Skene, for two cents I'd cross the ice and get that fur. It's ours—they stole it."

Skene looked hard into the blue eyes of his chief. "First, we'd have a handsome row to get it, that man with the scar, and his half-breed will fight; second, the police would be up here before we were out of the ice. Foolish talk!"

Skene looked suggestively at his chief, as he added: "We have—and you have."

The other shifted his gaze as he muttered, "Yes—that's only too true."

"But Mokoman! What'd you say happened to him?" Skene asked Michel.

"He was killed by de dog—hees 'troad tore."

"Killed by his own dogs—queer! Might have been wolves."

"No, de dog follow shoe tracks back to de trail. No wolf do dat."

"Well, so much for Mokoman! Small loss—never liked him."

"Does he know how much fur they had—these hunters who crossed?" asked the mate.

"They have mooch fur—bout one hunder skin."

"Half of it silver and black, probably. A small fortune! H—I!" In his chagrin Skene crashed his hard fist on the table.

"You're a judge of men, John. That fellow sure licked us," McDonald admitted ruefully. "Now we've got no time to lose with the southern hunters. —Michel!"

The Cree leaned to hear the whispered order of the free-trader. "You keep this Indian on the boat—fill him up and lock him in, forward. If he got loose among the southern camps with this devil talk, they'd follow the others. Breault ought to know, but the Lord knows where he is."

Shortly two dog-teams left the ship bound for the camps in the south half of the island in a mad rush to save the skins yet untraded.

The Christmas mail from Albany was approaching on the river trail below Elkwan. From the upper Elkwan and the Shamattawa, from the Winisk and the Raft, for days the hunters had drifted in to the post, dog harness gay with colored worsted and jingling with bells. There old Souci, elated by his stratagem and proud of the praise which Garth had given unstintedly in the privacy of his tent, had led the Akimiski hunters with their valuable fur-packs. In the trade-room Garth and Etienne were busy preparing for the trade which had not yet begun, for an Indian makes a ceremony of his Christmas visit to a post and in contrast to the speed with which he pushes his dogs over the river trails on the way in, is the deliberation with which he proceeds to barter his hunt when he has reached the fur post.

It was a happy pair that were opening bundles of blankets, getting out sugar and flour, tea and tobacco, from the store-room—filling the shelves with the trade-goods of the company.

"Ah-hah! W'at goin' on out dere?" Etienne looked from a window. "De mail es comin'!" he cried, and slipping on his parka, went out followed by Garth.

The Albany mail! Garth Guthrie's thoughts were a medley of surmises, questions, hopes. Letters from home! There would be little from his family—Ethel, that would bring cheer to an exile's Christmas. But the letter which a girl on the moonlit shore of the Albany had promised to send him—had she remembered? As he passed the tips on his way to the chattering people on the shore, his heart was quick with expectation—hope. After the disapproval—reproach, of home letters, the letter from Joan Quarrier would come like the sun breaking through the cloud canopy of the bay. But if she had forgotten? As he joined Etienne and Marie, the possibility of there being no letter on the sled behind the four Ungava huskies galloping in to Elkwan to the shouts of the Crees, made him set his finger nails in the palm of his hands.

Up at his quarters, the little Christmas spruce waited on a table—for her letter—his Christmas. Should it wait in vain?

In the trade-room Garth opened the mail bag with nervous fingers. Clara's familiar hand, company mail from Cameron, two from Ethel, pale blue—He heard the hammering of his heart as he fumbled for, and drew out, the last envelope in the bag. One from an old army friend, another from his colonel, a third! Slowly he slid the folded paper from the one beneath—the last, as he doubtfully shook his head, numb with disappointment.

He looked! A strange hand—a woman's! Hers! She had kept her word to the exile.

In his joy Garth sought the privacy of the rear of the counter to read Joan Quarrier's letter. Then he remembered. He had said it was to hang from the tree, to be read last, on Christmas day. Tucking it into the shirt beneath his coat, he put the others in a pocket and joined Etienne and the hungry dog-runner, who waited for Marie's dinner.

After all, it was to be a happy Christmas. A trade beyond his hopes; triumph over the schooner which lay thirty miles away over the ice—and word from the girl who faced so dauntlessly with those unwavering dark eyes. A Merry Christmas for Garth Guthrie, come what might from Charlie and Clara—and Ethel. From Ethel, what?

On Christmas eve he stood in his living room with old Anne, before the little spruce, brave with worsted and colored paper and bits of lighted candle. On the tree hung colored bags and at its foot were small parcels tied with gaudy Christmas ribbon. On the topmost twig was a letter.

"You told them, Anne?" he asked the grinning squaw, proud in her best wool dress, her raven hair coquettishly circled by a huge pink ribbon—a gift of Garth's, cherished for ceremonies like the present.

"Ah-hah," chuckled the faithful Cree. "Dey come soon, now. Marie, she rub dem chil's face till dey shine lak de moon."

Garth paced the floor, his lean, dark face beaming in anticipation. Then laughter, giggles, shouts of children, followed by stern reproof in a man's voice, announced the arrival of the guests, the eight Savannes.

Garth and Shot simultaneously sprang to the door to welcome the comely Marie, leading her excited brood of six, with the grinning Etienne as rear guard.

"Merry Christmas, Marie! Jean! Yvonne!" he cried, fairly dragging the giggling and embarrassed children into the house. "Ah, Monsieur Etienne Savanne, friend of McDonald Hal! Hal! is also with us tonight."

With his audience seated, Garth proceeded to divide the gifts he had ordered the previous year from lower Canada. For each of the children was a bag of candy, which was opened with wide-eyed curiosity and grins of delight. And, as the sweet tooth of grown-ups is also highly developed in the North, Marie and Anne, who had not been forgotten, swiftly evidenced their appreciation of good candy by joining the children in their munching.

Then the toys in packages marked with the children's names were given out. There remained a dress each for Marie and Anne, and a Ross sporting rifle for the delighted Etienne.

In the heart of the Santa Claus of Elkwan, the pleasure lighting the dark faces of his friends at his unexpected gifts reacted manifold. Besides, at the top of the tree, his own Christmas waited his eager eyes.

When with much bustle and chatter his friends returned to their cabin and old Anne left him, Garth sat down to read the letters from home. The first opened was his brother's, which ran as follows:

"If I had been told that my own brother was to disgrace himself as you have seen fit to do up there on James bay, I should have knocked down the liar who said it. We understand now your strange refusal to return home, your indifference to Ethel and the business. Professor Quarrier has given me the whole shameful story. A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw! Pah!"

Guthrie's lean face set hard as he read the first lines. Slowly the blood pushed up under the wind-burned skin.

"A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw!" Reading no further, he crushed the letter in his hand and let it fall.

"Poor Ninda!"

The letter from Clara was a medley of hysteria, reproach, and unmistakable evidence of a sincere affection for her erring brother-in-law. His eyes softened as he followed the misguided woman's effort to appeal to his sentiment—to his old love for Ethel.

"Of course she knows, Garth. That Quarrier man spread it all over town. But I am sure, in spite of it all, she still loves you—would forgive, if you asked her. Oh, Garth! You're the only brother I have, and I've always doted on you. Won't you, for my sake, come back this spring—for your own, for Ethel's sake. I don't know what she's writing you, but you mustn't take it seriously. She's terribly hurt, of course—but I know she'll forget it all, if you come back."

"Poor old Clara," said the man aloud. "Poor, simple Clara! She can't see yet that it's brother Charlie who counts with Ethel, not I."

So Quarrier had had his revenge, Quarrier, her brother. It was not strange after the snubbing he got. But she? What did Joan Quarrier think of the tale her brother had brought to Charles Guthrie?

Then he opened the two letters in the blue envelopes. One was dated a month earlier than the other and he read that first.

"I imagine your life in France," ran the letter, "was similar to that of the last year on James bay. I have learned much of what went on over there. Was it a French girl or an army nurse?"

She had unwittingly hurt him in the only way it was now possible for Ethel Falconer to reach the man who had once loved her. Army nurse! What had Ethel done for Canada to qualify her as a critic of the women who had toiled and dared behind the lines, that stricken men might live?

He read on: "Of course, Garth, this is your answer. I was willing to forget the slight, the neglect, but when we learned how you had been living, my love died. To share your affections with an ignorant, immoral squaw was asking a little too much, Garth."

The man who read laughed outright. "Your love died, my poor child, on the wharf at Quebec, when you saw what the Huns had done to your soldier boy," he said aloud.

"Well, why the postscript?" he went on. "She throws me over in the first letter, horse, foot and dragoons; why continue the agony?"

Opening the second envelope, he read: "When I wrote you, Garth, dear, I did not understand that she had died, but Mr. Quarrier tells me that his sister helped nurse her. Of course, it was all a horrible shock, but now that it is over and you may come home, I am willing to forget the past—if you want me to."

Rising in disgust, Guthrie paced the floor. "Merciful heavens! She's willing to forget the past! Poor, shallow, scheming Ethel! Rather than lose brother-in-law Charles, you cray-fish, eat humble-pie, grovel on your knees, 'Was it a French girl or a nurse?'" he quoted scathingly. "Ready to swallow that, too, are you, my dear?"

Guthrie finished the letter. So Ethel Falconer waited with open arms for the prodigal lover. But, unlike the son of the tale, the prodigal lover was not returning.

Picking up and finishing the crumpled letter of Charles, Garth learned that, inasmuch as he had disgraced the family name and ignored the family wishes, the Guthrie family would proceed to try to forget its black sheep.

With a smile of contempt Garth opened the door of the sheet-iron stove and tossed in the letters. Clara's he would answer—good-hearted, well-meaning, old Clara, who alone had sensed his condition and his unhappiness, on his return home. Then raising his arms and expelling a deep breath of relief, he said: "Thank God, that's over! And now—"

He took the letter of Joan Quarrier from the tree and eagerly opened it.

"Dear Mr. Exile:

"Have you kept your promise? Is this the last letter to be read? I wish you a very happy Christmas, but just how that would be possible up there on your frozen west coast is difficult to imagine. However, I hope you will not be lonely with thoughts of home and what you have so stubbornly turned from."

Garth's brows knotted in thought. "Of course," he surmised, "she must know about Ethel since her brother had met Charles—had heard of the engagement and his strange actions. But if she thought him still engaged, why did she write?"

Joan continued:

"My winter has been an active one, working in a school for homeless children. Poor things! They need all one can give them. It has not been as uninteresting as it sounds. Everything is so new and strange."

"But you, when are you coming back to your kind, Mr. Exile? You must be wonderfully well after two years—and they are still waiting for you."

"Again my deepest gratitude for your hospitality to the shipwrecked."

Garth finished the letter with a groan of disappointment. "She's heard a fine tale from the family, and her brother's version wouldn't help it any," he muttered. "Doesn't speak of meeting them, though. She, in a school for homeless children—"

It was evident to Guthrie from the reserved tone of Joan Quarrier's letter that she had heard of his engagement to Ethel, and it was also quite as clear that she was ignorant of the color of the story Quarrier had retailed to Charles. To this, he realized, Joan Quarrier would give instant and flat denial but she was not even in Montreal—would never meet the Guthries. And after all, what did it matter? He was through with them—his smug brother, and the girl who had lost him when she stared in horror at his scarred cheek that day when the Royal Mounties came home.

He replaced the letter in the pocket of his shirt to be reread again and again with increasing disappointment—chagrin. He had hoped for something more personal—something of the Joan Quarrier he had known for five short days in September. But it was evident that she thought the factor of Elkwan not a free man. Well, he was now. Quarrier had done him an unintentional kindness in that lie—had forced Ethel's hand. Now he, Garth, could accept her release. Then what?

Far into the night Guthrie sat and smoked, but when he blew out the candle, he was no nearer a solution of his problem. Joan Quarrier had been right when she feared that a lonely Christmas awaited the exile at Elkwan. It did—a Christmas gray because a thousand miles of forest separated Garth Guthrie from a girl whose hair the moon once touched with silver dust on the cliffs of the Albany.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

To be Well the Kidneys Must Thoroughly Eliminate Waste Poisons from the Blood.

DOES every day find you lame, stiff and achy? Do you feel tired and drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are the kidney secretions scanty and burning in passage?

Know, then, that these are often signs of improper kidney action. Sluggish kidneys allow acid poisons to remain in the blood and upset the whole system.

If your kidneys are acting sluggishly, assist them with Doan's Pills. Doan's have established a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Half Century Since Birth of "Tom Sawyer"

That perennial American boy, "Tom Sawyer," is fifty years old and literary societies of the country are celebrating the birth of Mark Twain's incorrigible pen child, an event which marked a distinct epoch in American literature. While his stories of "Tom" and "Huckleberry Finn" established Mark Twain's genius in the eyes of later-day critics, his worldwide reputation as a humorist had been achieved almost ten years before they gained wide circulation. A. H. Espenshade recalls, writing a biographical sketch of Mark Twain in St. Nicholas Magazine.

His "Innocents Abroad," a collection of newspaper letters sent back during his trip to Europe and the Holy Land, was published in 1869, and by that date his popularity and royalties were rivaling even those of modern best-selling authors. On a single lecture tour he earned $8,000 and the royalties on "Innocents Abroad" reached $6,000 in the first six months.

Early Caterpillar Train

A Hampshire correspondent recalls that nearly 70 years ago he saw in Hyde park a trial of a military train of wagons loaded with soldiers dressed in fatigue jackets and drawn by a steam engine bearing the name India.

This engine, he says, laid and raised its own track, each "slipper" being apparently about 4 feet long, mounted, and revolving on rollers much like the modern caterpillar movement. The experiment, according to the London Post, appeared to aim at improved military transport, and the men hauled would probably number about 200 in eight wagons.

Thinkers Have Ever Seen Trouble Ahead

We are all more or less nervous at times—especially when something goes wrong with us—about what is going to happen to the human race. The psychiatrists are particularly apprehensive. Dr. Max Shlapp, for instance, told the Academy of Medicine, at New York that he feared that the whole race of tomorrow would either be grossly damaged or lowered in general efficiency as a result of the high tension lives we lead—though, to be sure, all of us don't lead that kind of lives. 'Twas ever thus. Greece saw trouble ahead; so did Rome. Those who watched the moths flutter round the Louis XIV candle in France were gravely apprehensive, and so were those who frowned on the gayeties of the court of Charles II in England. Trouble was ahead then as it is now. Some pretty bad messes followed, but humanity survived, and, on the whole, improved. But trouble is always ahead. We never catch up with the dread of it. Surely there is comfort in the thought that the worst is yet to come—and probably will never get here.—Indianapolis News

The peace pipe of the North American Indians was a tobacco pipe with a stem of reed or painted wood about two feet and a half long, decorated with feathers, with a large bowl, usually of red soapstone. After a treaty was signed, the Indians filled the calumet, or peace pipe, with the best tobacco, and presented it to the representatives of the party with whom they entered into alliance, the Indians themselves smoking out of it afterward.—Exchange.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson
Secretary
Illinois Trade Association

The state of Illinois may fittingly commemorate the life of the immortal Lincoln if the present plans of Herbert Wells Fay, custodian of the Lincoln tomb and monument in Springfield, reach perfection. Fay's plan suggests a tomb and monument 500 feet high and surmounted by an airplane beacon searchlight. The custodian's scheme calls for a gigantic 200-foot statue of the emancipator on a 300-foot base. Over 150,000 tourists signed the register of the present memorial last year, whereas in 1920 but 30,000 people affixed their signatures.

The state division of highways has announced the awarding of contracts for the construction of pavement in the following parts of the state:

Representative Henry C. Allen, Lyndon, was named chairman and Senator Earl B. Searcy, Springfield, secretary of the storm relief commission created by the legislature at an organization meeting held recently in the offices of Governor Small. The legislature appropriated $50,000 which will be expended after reports to be furnished by the state department of public welfare and public health are considered.

Members of the commission, named recently are: Senators Earl B. Searcy, Springfield; A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, and Ben L. Smith, Pekin; Representatives Henry C. Allen, Lyndon; A. B. Lager, Carlyle, and Ed Ryan, Lawrenceville.

The Fifty-Fifth General Assembly also voted $1,500,000 for the repair of levees in various parts of the state which were damaged by floods; this work is proceeding rapidly under the direction of Leslie Small, director of the state department of purchases and construction.

Chicken thieves and rural pilferers in Illinois will soon be a thing of the past when six organizations of statewide prominence, the agricultural press and the Illinois department of agriculture, representatives of which recently held a meeting in the office of S. J. Stanard, director of agriculture, get started on an active working basis.

C. V. Gregory, editor of the Prairie Farmer, an agricultural publication, was elected president of the new organization. Alden Snyder, Montgomery county agricultural adviser, is secretary. He represents the Illinois Farm Advisers' association.

Five plans to stop farm thefts, that the state farm guard committee recommends, are the installation of burglar alarms, marking chickens with a registry number, filed with dealers and peace officers, organization of county anti-theft associations, improved marksmanship, and the enforcement of the poultry dealers' license law.

Gov. Len Small has promised to do "all possible" to start construction of hard roads in Franklin county in order to furnish work for the hundreds of idle coal miners in this section. The governor's action came as a response to the hundreds of letters sent him by and on behalf of the miners.

Hard road delegations from various parts of the state conferred with Gov. Len Small last week regarding the early construction of highways provided for in the $100,000,000 bond issue. Early construction was asked on the road from Carlinville to Kampsboro and the highway from Hillsboro to Greenville. A request was also made by Senator Richard Barr, Joliet, that the hard road at Crete, the home of the Lincoln field race track, be widened.

Illinois' new state penitentiary at Stateville, near Joliet, is already accommodating 500 more than it was built to accommodate, according to figures presented by Judge Chauncey H. Jenkins, former director of the state department of public welfare, in an address delivered in Springfield.

Bids for the construction of 82 miles of paved roads, 16 miles of grading and 26 bridge sections were received recently by the state department of public works and buildings. Two of the pavement sections will be of the 40-foot type in DuPage county, aimed to relieve traffic congestion in the vicinity of Chicago.

Fines collected by a justice of the peace for violation of the Motor Vehicle Act should be turned over to the county highway commission, Attorney General Carlstrom ruled recently.

House Bill 463 (Baxter). Amends sections 4, 5, 6, 10 and 15 of an act to regulate the sale of paints, oils, and other articles or compounds used in connection therewith, June 21, 1917. Changes definition of "imitation butter" to be any product containing more than 1 per cent of water or any fat or oil other than that derived from milk or cream which gives the semblance of butter. Fines collected by the department of agriculture for violation are to be paid into the state treasury within 30 days.

House Bill 468 (Hunter). Adds section 50a to an act relating to liens, approved March 25, 1874. Provides that persons threshing, hulling, selling or baling crops, shall have a lien thereon, from date of commencement of such work, to the amount of agreed contract price of job, or for the reasonable value of services or labor furnished. Lien shall run for a period of four months from date of completion of services regardless of the fact that person claiming lien does not retain possession.

House Bill 469 (Allen). Amends section 11 of an act to regulate the sale and analysis of concentrated feeding stuffs, May 18, 1905. Provides that all fines imposed and collected under this act shall be paid, within 30 days after collection, to the department of agriculture and by it paid into the state treasury.

House Bill 472 (McCarthy). Amends sections 5, 9, 11, 12, 13 and 30a of the Civil Administrative Code, approved March 7, 1917, and adds section 54a thereto. Creates the following offices: Superintendent of live stock industries, with an annual salary of $4,800; state sanitary veterinary inspector, with an annual salary of $5,500, in place of the office of chief veterinarian, and supervisor of Illinois way construction, with an annual salary of $6,000, in place of the superintendent of waterways. Provides for 11 arbitrators in the department of labor, with an annual salary of $5,000 each, and a parole board of nine members, with an annual salary of $5,000 each, in addition to the supervisor of paroles, who shall be chairman of the board. Increases the annual salary of the secretary of Illinois Commerce Commission from $5,000 to $7,000 a year. Omits the provision that certain officers provided for by this act shall devote their entire time to the duties of their office; and instead provides that every officer shall perform all the duties of his office as prescribed by law. Permits the governor to appoint acting directors pending vacancies in office. Provides for the disposal of unserviceable property of the state by the department of finance, instead of by the department of public welfare. The parole board is to exercise the duties now imposed upon the department of public welfare as to the granting of paroles. Provides for the appointment of the board by the governor.

House Bill 473 (Robbins). Amends sections 7 and 12 of an act to regulate cold storage of certain articles of food, July 1, 1927. Makes it violation of the act to erase, deface or remove markings or tags placed on containers or articles of food as required by this act. Fines collected shall be paid within 30 days to the department of agriculture and by it into the state treasury.

House Bill 474 (Arnold). Appropriates $250,000 to the governor to remove the flood waters from the Illinois river valley to permit the return of the inhabitants.

Ideas About Heaven

Are Many and Varied

Where is heaven? What is heaven? The question may not have been settled, but it has at least been answered. The ideas contributed are many and various. Here are a few of them:

A circus lot at the end of Main street.

A very high spot in the human imagination.

A beautiful mirage which lures deluded travelers into the barren desert of credulity.

The abode of certain portions of the Deity.

A spiritual land of peace, plenty and equality, situate, lying, and being in the uppermost region above the clouds, conjured up by religion to assist in the maintenance of law, order and good will among God's children while in the bodily state on earth.

The most sublime, the most pitiful, the most pathetic delusion of all the ages.

Heaven is that which lies about us in our infancy. Heaven is that about which we were lied to in our infancy.

The ideal, the limit of human ambitions and aspirations, the ever-flying perfect.

A place to which every one is anxious to go, but no one seems to be in any hurry to get there.—The Forum.

Concerning the Kiss

A Greek peasant kissed the hand or knee of a superior when he bowed before him. Kissing the feet of the gods was also a form of Greek worship. The Greeks had made the rule: To kiss on the lips is to adore the living breath of the person saluted; to kiss the feet is to humble one's self in adoration. Our custom of kissing our hands to people at a distance from us comes from the ancient habit of kissing the hands to a god whose statue was too tall to be reached.

Not what we would, but what we must,
Makes up the sum of living;
Heaven is both more and less than just

In taking and in giving.
Swords cleave to hands that sought the plow,
And laurels miss the soldier's brow.

DAINTY FOODS.

Chicken gravy is so good that not a spoonful should be wasted. Serve it poured over hot buttered toast for a luncheon dish with a cupful of hot cocoa and a simple lettuce salad with French dressing.

Swedish Cabbage.—Boil until tender, a dozen firm, large leaves of cabbage. Drain and fill with the following: Chop a pound of round steak, add salt, pepper, parsley, a clove of garlic, a tablespoonful or two of cream to moisten and three table-spoonfuls of bread crumbs. Wrap the leaves around a roll of the mixture, tie and drop into a pint of soup stock. Place in a hot oven and baste while cooking. Remove the strings and serve hot.

Poppy Seed Salad.—Sprinkle a little grated sage cheese over fresh head lettuce, sprinkle with freshly roasted poppy seed and serve with French dressing.

Fillet of Beef with Vegetables.—Wipe a three-pound fillet of beef and brown it in fat or butter in a hot frying pan. When the entire surface is well seared, cook slowly for half an hour, season well with salt and pepper and surround with carrots, peas, and mushrooms, all cooked in butter. Serve with:

Mushroom Sauce.—Cook the stems of the mushrooms in cold water to cover, until all the flavor is removed. Chop the mushrooms with one cupful of the caps, season well and cook in butter for a few minutes. To the mushroom liquor add a cupful of chicken stock; thicken with three table-spoonfuls of flour, cooked with two of butter and add the mushrooms.

Raspberry Sherbet.—Take one pint of raspberry juice, a cupful of sugar and a pint of cream with a table-spoonful of lemon juice. Freeze and serve garnished with whipped cream and a few preserved or fresh berries.

Orange and Lemon Sherbet.—To the juice and rind of three oranges and one lemon, add a cupful of honey or sugar syrup. Freeze as usual with a pint of cream. Serve in the halves of the oranges.

Seasonable Foods.

How about an oyster stew?

Lincoln Stew.—Place a quart of milk in a double boiler, season well with celery salt, salt, paprika and cayenne. Grate a small onion, allowing the juice to drip into the milk; add a dozen crushed oyster crackers and two table-spoonfuls of butter. When boiling hot, add a quart of good oysters with the liquor. When the edges begin to ruffle, remove the oysters and add a beaten egg; return the oysters to the stew and serve at once.

Celery with Cheese.—Cut the coarser stalks of celery into small pieces and cook in a small amount of water until tender. Place a layer of the cooked celery in a baking dish, cover with a layer of the cheese—using a rich crumbly kind, then add a covering of white sauce and another layer of celery. Top with a layer of white sauce and buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Maple Parfait.—Beat the yolks of four eggs lightly and pour over them one cupful of hot maple syrup; stir and cook until the egg is cooked. Cool, add a pinch of salt and a pint of whipped cream with the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a mold and let stand in ice and salt for four hours.

Cream, Torte.—Beat six eggs, add one cupful of sugar, three table-spoonfuls of bread crumbs which have been well mixed with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Add one-half pound of dates cut fine, one-half pound of walnuts and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Add salt and such flavoring as one likes. Bake in layers and put together with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored.

Ripe Cucumber Chowder.—Take twelve large, ripe cucumbers, grate with three onions. Press the pulp as dry as possible. Add two chopped red peppers, salt and vinegar to moisten. It should be of the consistency of horseradish. Seal and keep in a cool place.

Casserole Veal.—Prepare the meat by seasoning and browning and instead of using vegetables, add one shredded onion and half a sliced onion for flavor, frying them both brown; add a cupful of hot steamed rice a half hour before serving.

Buttered Carrots.—Scrape small-sized carrots and cut into finger-sized lengths, add a very little water and cook carefully so that they will not burn; add salt, butter and simmer on the back of the stove, adding a grating of nutmeg.

Lesson for October 9

ELIJAH HEARS GOD'S VOICE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and He shall strengthen thine heart.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Elijah Hears God's Voice.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Encourages Elijah.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Listening to God's Voice.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How God Speaks to Men.

1. Elijah's Flight (vv. 1-14).

Upon Ahab's return from the excitement on Mount Carmel, he told his wife all that Elijah had done, that even all her prophets had been hewn to pieces by the sword. This so enraged her that she sent a message of death to Elijah, who seems to have been waiting at the gate (vv. 1, 2). Though Elijah had courageously stood before the king and the priests of Baal, he now cowered before this woman, and fled for his life. Let us beware lest when we think we stand, we fall (I Cor. 10:12).

1. Elijah under the juniper tree (vv. 3-7). The juniper tree was a shrub of the desert which afforded shelter and protection to travelers from the burning sun by day and the cold wind by night.

(1) His request (v. 4): This was that he might die. This was no doubt a foolish thing for him to say, but let us be as considerate toward him as was God. The discouragement, and even despondency, of Elijah, was due to the nervous strain of about four years of unusual service for God, which culminated on Mount Carmel. Such nervous reaction is to be expected, and surely the heart of this lesson will be missed unless we see it in that light, and see God's tenderness toward his overworked servant.

(2) God's tender treatment (vv. 5-7) a. He gave him sleep (v. 5). "He giveth His beloved sleep" (Ps. 127:2).

b. He sent an angel to cook Elijah's meal (v. 6, 7). The angel of the Lord is usually understood to be the second member of the Holy Trinity. If this be correct, then we see Jehovah-Jesus preparing food for His servant Elijah, as He afterward did for His discouraged disciples by Galilee.

2. Elijah at Horeb (vv. 8-14). God had kindly ministered to His discouraged prophet so that he would be in a fit condition to receive the needed instruction and correction.

(1) God's interview with Elijah in the cave (vv. 9, 10). a. God's question, "What doest thou here, Elijah?" (v. 9). This was a stinging rebuke, though most kindly given. It implied that his appointed messenger was now far away from the field of duty. How blessed to know that "A God-forsaking saint is not a God-forsaken saint!" b. Elijah's answer (v. 10). Elijah tried to vindicate himself by asserting his jealous loyalty to God—that in spite of all this the people had not only rejected his message and dishonored God, but sought to destroy him.

(2) God's interview with Elijah on the mount (vv. 11-14). While standing before the Lord on the mount, God caused a mighty demonstration of wind, earthquake and fire to pass before him, to show unto him the nature of the work he had been doing for God, and to show him what was lacking in his work for the fullest attainment of success. Elijah had about him much of the whirlwind, earthquake and fire. His work had been terrifying and alarming, but it lacked in gentleness and love. This object lesson in the days of God's working is a needed message for this age, which is so wonderfully characterized by noise and clamor. The world is not "taken for Christ" by the fleshly energy and enthusiasms of conventions and committees, but by the quiet hearts who go forth proclaiming God's Word in the energy of the Holy Spirit.

11. Elijah's Return (vv. 15-18).

Though Elijah had erred, God brought him again into His service. How comforting to know that God does not reject His servants because of their failures in times of despondency! He deals with them after the motive of their hearts. Elijah was nourished and instructed by the Lord and then sent on a high mission. God took Elijah out of himself by giving him a new commission. Before God would come in His chariot to take Elijah home, he sent him upon a three-fold ministry.

1. To anoint Hazael king over Syria (v. 15).

2. To anoint Jehu king over Israel (v. 16).

3. To anoint Elisha as his own successor in the prophet's room (vv. 19-21).

Look Up to God

Dare to look up to God and say: Deal with me in the future as Thou wilt: I am of the same mind as Thou art; I am Thine; I refuse nothing that pleases Thee; lead me where Thou wilt; clothe me in any dress Thou chooseth.—Epictetus.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine, and you can use these facts as a testimonial. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

Touchdown!

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS STADIUM

CAPTAIN MOESER, PRINCETON

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THERE'S a touch of autumn coolness in the air and the faint purple haze that hangs over the distant hills tells that Indian summer is at hand. A mammoth structure of concrete and steel, gleaming white in the sunny October afternoon, holds a vibrant mass of humanity—40,000—50,000—60,000. Bands playing—songs—the measured cadence of r-a-h, r-a-h, r-a-h, and a sharper explosion of sound as human derishes in white break into a new set of contortions. A shifting, changing kaleidoscope of color and motion and sound which is suddenly stilled in that breathless moment before the whistle shrills. A thump and a soaring object high in the air—the pounding of cleated shoes on the turf—the impact of human bodies—two lines of husky young American manhood that bend and sway. Then with the eyes of the 60,000 riveted on that little group of 22 down there on the rectangular patch of green, one of the lines shifts and spreads. A crouching figure runs back from the mass and the ball shoots over the line into the arms of a player far off to the right. As he turns and takes the first step in his flight down the chalk-marked field, the 60,000 come to their feet in one mighty roar—"Touchdown!" And that's football!

Such was the scene that was repeated time after time last year and if the season of 1923 is any criterion it will be repeated many more times during the season of 1927. When the curtain went down last November, an eastern sports writer declared that "Superlatives only may be used in reviewing the football season of 1926. In matters of attendance, stirring competition, thrilling incident and amazing form reversals no season in the more than fifty years of gridiron play approached the ten weeks which recently passed into history."

If only the matter of attendance alone were considered it would be sufficient to show what a hold football now has on the American public. Time was when Vox Populi knew but little of "rah, rah, rah." He left that to the "collegians" and regarded with a tolerant eye the autumnal madness which afflicted them early in September, reached its high fever point late in October and then cooled off with the first snow flurries in November. But in late years this virus got into the body politic and, before he realized it, Mr. Average American was troubled with the fall restlessness which had heretofore afflicted only his sons—and daughters—as they began packing their trunks "to go away to college."

Perhaps it is not saying too much to assert that there is one individual principally responsible for this change in the public attitude toward football, and that individual is the erstwhile ice-man of Wheaton, Ill., young Mr. Harold Grange. The young Mr. Grange began playing football under the tutelage of Coach Bob Zuppke at the University of Illinois in 1923 and immediately gave promise of being an unusual backfield man. Then the season of 1924 opened. Illinois was dedicating its new million-dollar stadium with Michigan as the opposing team. A crowd of 67,000 had gathered for the event. (The photograph of that crowd is shown above.) Michigan kicked off. The agile young Mr. Grange received the ball and ran through the whole Michigan team for a touchdown. Michigan kicked off again and after one play Grange took the ball and again ran the length of the field for a touchdown. In fact, four times during the first quarter the Illinois halfback danced across the Maize and Blue goal line to score and just to complete the afternoon's work he made another touchdown later in the game.

But it was not until the season of 1925 that this red-headed youngster became a national figure. Illinois was scheduled to play Pennsylvania, one of the strongest teams in the East that year and undefeated up to the time they met the western invaders on historic Franklin field. The East had heard of Grange, of course, but it was a bit skeptical of the Middle West's boast that he was a gridiron superman. Sixty-three thousand people saw that game—saw Grange, despite the handicap of a muddy field, carry the ball 32 times, average 11 yards on every play, run through the whole Penn team twice for gains of 50 yards each time and score three touchdowns.

But more important than the fact that "Red" Grange was one of the greatest football stars that ever sped across a college gridiron and that his entry into professional football gave it new life is the fact that he was the dominant figure in giving several million Americans a new major sport interest which promises to give baseball serious competition for the title of "the great national game." For after the seasons of 1924 and 1925 the American public had tasted football and found it good. So it was prepared to make the season of 1926 the greatest in every respect that the sport had known up to that time.

As early as the third week of the 1926 season, the various stadia in different parts of the country, seating from 40,000 to more than 60,000, were reporting capacity crowds. By the end of the season the larger colleges of the East reported that at least 5,000,000 had seen their games. In the Big Ten the game had drawn a total gallery of more than 1,500,000 and on the Pacific coast seven college teams had played before 1,250,000 fans. All in all, it has been estimated that the 200 or more colleges which had football teams drew into their football stands the amazing total of 15,000,000 persons. Since the tickets were priced all the way from 75 cents for the small colleges, to the top price of $15 for the Army-Navy game, it is estimated that the American public was willing to spend a minimum of $30,000,000 for its Saturday afternoon diversion and that figure may be increased by several millions when the activities of the speculators are taken into consideration.

It was a season of thrills and upsets, too. Dartmouth, the undisputed champion of the country in 1925 and without a defeat on its record for nearly three years, failed to win a single major contest all season, losing to Yale, Harvard, Brown and Cornell. Again and again the little David triumphed over the giant Goliath. Harvard lost the first game of the season to little Geneva college; early in the season little St. Mary's, out on the Pacific coast, humbled the California

COACH ROCKNE, NOTRE DAME

CAPTAIN WILSON, ARMY

Bears; Knute Rockne's Notre Dame team, famous for its "Four Horseman," seemed to be riding easily to national honors until they came a cropper at Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech won by a score of 19 to 0. But they took their turn in upsetting exercises when they journeyed out to the Pacific coast to meet Coach Howard Jones' Southern California eleven. Except for a one-point defeat at the hands of Stanford, U. S. C. had been clicking off victories at a regular pace. Then Notre Dame came along and handed them a 13 to 12 defeat in the game which rang down the curtain on the 1926 season.

Thrills and upsets, and thrills! At Ithaca, Cornell, trailing Dartmouth 7 to 23 in the last period, unleashed a sensational attack which carried Dobie's men to a 24 to 23 victory over the Green. At Annapolis with Colgate leading Navy 7 to 6 in the last minute of play, on the Middies' 3 yard line and headed for a touchdown, a Colgate fumbled and Lloyd, a Navy end, picked up the ball and ran 97 yards to a Navy 13 to 7 victory. At Minneapolis, Michigan, outrushed 20 yards to 1 by Minnesota and trailing 0 to 6, scored a sensational victory in the last period when Benny Friedman kicked the goal to make a final score of Michigan 7, Minnesota 6.

But the climax of the season in interest and in attendance came on November 27 when the Army and the Navy met in the Soldier field stadium at Chicago. It was the first time the annual service game had ever been played west of the Alleghenies. It was the first time, too, that a crowd of 110,000 had ever gathered to see a football game. Early in the game the Navy ran roughshod over the Cadets for a lead of 14 to 0. Then the Army rallied, tied the count at 14 to 14 and scored a touchdown to give them a 21 to 14 lead. Then the Navy came back with a volley of passes and Halfback Shapley skirted the end for a touchdown. The score was then 21 to 20. It remained for Halfback Hamilton of the Navy to decide the issue. He kicked the goal. Score: Army 21, Navy 21.

Such was the season of 1926, the "season of superlatives." What will 1927 be? It also may be a season of superlatives in attendance or in thrills when Harvard meets Yale, when California meets Stanford, when Pennsylvania plays Chicago or when Notre Dame and Southern California meet on Soldier field on November 26. For this week and next week and for the next five or six weeks 15,000,000 Americans or more will be crowding into college stadia all over the United States to await the one big thrill in the game, to come to their feet in the mighty roar of "Touchdown!" For that's football!

Man and the Flowers.

The fragrance of plants is not for man's pleasure; it is a means of attracting insects to fertilize them. The object of many present-day florists is to improve a flower in its coloring, size and substance—in short to "paint the lily." They cannot improve the fragrance, which is perhaps the reason they seem to care so little for its disappearance under their handling.—Exchange.
